A NOTABLE GATHERING. National Winona Bible Conference Opens—Largest Attendance in its History.

The Eighth Annual Bible Conference opened at Winona Lake, Indiana, on Sunday, August 17, with a record breaking attendance. This Conference, founded by the Rev. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman eight years ago, has rapidly increased in attendance and has now become the largest and most notable gathering of its character in the world.

Last year the enrollment of ministers reached nearly 1,200, and the lay members from churches of all denominations brought the attendance to about 6,000. It is estimated that at least 1,500 ministers and evangelists are on the grounds beside the thousands of laymen and Christian workers, which represent almost every State in the Union.

The morning prayer service at 6:30 was led by Rev. Arthur J. Smith, the evangelist, in the Chapel of the Inn. Notwithstanding the early hour the chapel was well filled and the services marked by an earnest devotional spirit.

The Sunday-school at 9:00 o'clock was held in the auditorium, Capt. F. F. McGraw, of Indianapolis, conducting the exercises. The attendance was the largest of the year, the enrollment reaching almost one thousand.

The opening sermon at 11 a. m. was delivered by Dr. Chapman. He took for his text, "Let Us Arise and go to Bethel," Gen. 35:3. It was an earnest appeal to consecration. He said: "Put away all sin. Live clean lives." Put away the gods of the stranger." In closing he said, "We have all had our Bethel experiences and many of us have wandered away from them. Let us go back, pray as we used to pray, work as we used to work, preach as we used to preach, and the heavens will be opened." The large auditorium was crowded to its utmost at this the regular opening meeting.

At 3 p. m. the Rev. Dr. George A. Johnson Ross, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Cambridge, England, was introduced by Dr. Chapman. He gave his first sermon in this country, taking for his theme the "Universality of Jesus," text, Col. 1:19, "It pleased the Father that in him should all fullness dwell." He began by saying that he desired that this, his first religious address in America, should be devoted to an attempt to exalt his Lord before his hearers. His sermon was a marvelous one, and as he described the character of our Savior the intense interest the audience showed could almost be felt. He said in part, "All careful readers of the gospel note the strange manifoldness of Jesus Christ. He alone bears the lineaments of the Universal. If emphasis is laid upon one aspect of his character a perfect balance is restored by recalling another. In his nature alone is a storehouse for all the ideals realizable by men everywhere. As Christ stands midway between the sexes so He stands between the races of mankind. In him there is neither Jew nor Greek. He is the son of man. His mind spans the centuries. He is the one Catholic man." Dr. Ross traced the progress of Christianity through the ages, and its present progress into the various countries of the world. Let us, he said, be filled with a doring love for this Christ whom we preach and serve. Let us not fear that any man is beyond the reach of His saving arm. Rev. Ross is considered by the Bible teachers of this country who are here, as the most powerful expounder of the Scriptures ever presented by the Winona management.

At 4 o'clock the Rev. Dr. Munhall, of Philadelphia, addressed a large audience. The Rev. Dr. Murrell, of London, spoke to at least 3,000 persons at the evening Hillside service. His address was based upon 2 Chron. 29:27, "When the burnt offering began, then the song of the Lord began also." He considered the sources of consecration and self-sacrifice. As we yield ourselves to God, his fire descends and consumes the sacrifice. The men and women who have no sacrifice in their lives have no songs in their hearts.

The evening sermon was preached by the Rev. George Jackson, D. D., of Edinburgh. Dr. Jackson made his first appearance before a Winona audience on Saturday evening, Aug. 16, in his lecture on "John Knox." He is a strong man and will preach almost every evening during the conference.

On Monday morning at 8 o'clock an interesting lecture was conducted on the Jews by the Rev. Thomas M. Chalmers of Chicago. The Rev. Ross gave a talk on "Our Treatment of God's Messages" which he stated was supremely important. The other speakers of the day were the Rev. Mr. Murrell, Dr. Munhall, Prof. R. R. Lloyd, Prof. N. T. Greek, the Rev. Geo. Jackson and others. The Conference closes Aug. 27. The best Bible teachers of this country will speak. The Southern States are largely represented.

THE TRUE WEALTH OF THE MOUNTAINS.

For Which All Should Strive.

We read of investments in oil fields, in coal mines, in fire-clay, in pine and cedar; yea, in all the different industries that fill the country with that which "perisheth with the using." These things, verily, are not the true riches of the mountains. The bright minds and imperishable souls are the gems which, when found and brought into contact with Christian education, will shine, not as the glitter of gold but as home-makers and law-keepers. Upon the purity of the home, the intelligence of the citizen, the consecration of the Christian, depend the welfare of this State and Nation. Whatever tends to uplift womanhood, to ennoble manhood, to deepen the spiritual life, should be fostered. This is the aim of our Mission Schools.

While men are sinking shafts for oil wells, who will sink deep the shaft of eternal life and open up a fountain, of whose waters if we drink we shall never thirst?

While capitalists are bridging the streams, encircling the hills, tunneling the mountains to make easy highways for the traffic, who will make a highway, a way of holiness, for the feet of our own Anglo-Saxon brother, that he "may not err therein?"

While rivers are being locked, that they may hold back the destructive flood, who will build strong bulwarks against the food-tides of sin?

The mountains are being literally covered with tramways, with tools, implements, machinery and plants of all description for the development of their material resources.

The Christian Woman's Board of Missions is endeavoring to establish two strong, well equipped plants for Christian education. Much of the machinery has been supplied, the material is at hand,

In the bright boys and girls of the mountains, to mold and fashion into "vessels of honor for the Master's use," but the power that must set in motion these forces is consecrated wealth. If Christian men and women of Kentucky are as much interested in these plants as Hazel Green and Morehead as they are in oil wells and coal mines, they will, without delay, send their orders for many shares in this good work, to Mrs. Helen E. Moses, 152 East Market St., Indianapolis, Ind.

She may not promise you "three dollars for one" on your investment, but He whose promise never fails, whose bank never breaks, whose cashier never defaults, has said, "Ye shall receive manifold more in the present time and in the world to come, life everlasting." The National Board undertook these missions, with faith in the men and women of Kentucky: faith in their State pride; faith in their love for a better citizenship; faith in their devotion to the Gospel of the Son of God. Shall this faith be destroyed by our failure to "give as the Lord has prospered us"?—Mrs. Sarah Yancey in Chris Guide.

Looking for a Good Opening
President J. W. McGarvey, Jr., of Madison Institute, has recently returned from a trip through the State in the interest of his school. He thinks the outlook is bright for a fine school this fall and expects the attendance to be large. Wherever he went he could hear Madison Institute complimented and all the former patrons whom he saw seemed well pleased with the work done. One of the handsomest school catalogues is carried by the professor and went out from the Advocate office.

Reforming Drunkards.
In dealing with "plain drunks" Judge Riley, of the Lexington Police Court, follows a plan that promises well for the cause of temperance. When the one who is in the habit of indulging to excess in the "blowing bowl" is brought before him he assesses the usual fine and costs but suspends the penalty on condition that the offender take the temperance pledge in open court. The proceedings are entered on record, and a violation of the pledge invokes the reinstatement of the old fine and the assessment of a new one. Judge Riley has on these terms administered the solemn pledge to a number of "old wags," on whom it appeared to have the desired effect.—Richmond Climax.

FRIGHTFUL EXPERIENCE of a Young Lady—Her Escape and the Lesson Taught.

A young lady in Morristown, N. J., grasped the guy-wire on the electric-light pole in front of her father's house, to see if she could get a slight shock. Her hand was suddenly contracted by a powerful current which swept through her body. The young girl screamed in agony. She writhed and twisted and fell to the ground, but she could not relax her hold upon the live wire, which was burning her hands, for she had reached up with her left to tear the right hand away. Men and boys ran toward her, but not one dared to put out a hand to save the girl. Then her mother ran out. "Oh, mamma," cried the girl, "save me! My hands are burning up!" The mother quickly grasped her daughter around the waist, but was hurried to the ground as if by a blow of a club. Finally a man came up with presence of mind enough to take an ax and sever the wire. He was in time to save the girl's life, but she was fearfully burned. The incident suggests tragedies that are taking place every day before our eyes. Many people are willing to tamper with sin, and run the risk of a slight shock. A boy likes to drink a glass of wine that it will make his nerves tight, and many are asking themselves, how far can I go in the wrong way without being overthrown? That is the way the devil fishes for men and women. People grasp his wires and get a slight shock, and only laugh at danger; but some day they take hold of a live wire, that has all the fire of hell in it, and they are struck through and through with death. It is better not to play with the devil's wires at all.—J. Wilbur Chapman.

No New Convents.

The federal council of Switzerland has decreed the active enforcement of an article of the constitution forbidding the establishment of new convents by religious orders or the reestablishment of suppressed congregations. Three months grace is allowed the orders who have infringed the constitution in which to comply with the decree by closing their establishments.

TARIFF REVIS-

ION SENTIMENT.

The sentiment in favor of tariff revision is very strong in the West," says Representative Eddy, Republican, of Minnesota. "Every Republican State convention west of the Allegheny Mountains has declared for it, and every congressional candidate nominated is pledged to it more or less strongly in his acceptance speech. The Western idea of a protective tariff is substantially as follows: It should not afford protection to monopoly, that is, to an industry absolutely controlled by an individual partnership, a corporation or a trust."

The trusts, combines and monopolies have been fostered by Republican legislation, and the hand that would take from the pockets of the many is now seen on the Republican canvass, what can they do more than to resolve? Nay, the people must unite, not for extreme measures, but to protect themselves from the trusts so powerful because of existing protective tariff laws.

"In this issue is an article 'True Wealth of the Mountains,' to which we call special attention. Work similar to that done at Hazel Green and Morehead by the Christian Woman's Board of Missions is done at other towns in Kentucky by other religious organizations. Such love, such interest in the young people of Kentucky are highly commendable and deserve the hearty financial support of people who live in these communities and of thousands of others who value the boys and girls. From the men and women who are blessed with an abundance of this world's goods, must the needed support come.

A scribbler says: "The terrible automobile accident in France in which Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fair lost their lives again brings to mind the fact that while these machines may be a novelty, they are nevertheless veritable engines of death."

Because a boy filled his stomach with green apples causing cholera and death, to adopt the scribbler's logic, we could say let green apples alone, they bring death; keep off the mighty ship that speeds the deep, for one went down at sea and was an engine of death; the elevator that carries its thousands has met with an accident; from the height of an eighth story plunges downward, leaving mangled bodies in a third basement; another engine of death. Then there is the gentle horse, the one the children played about at home, that pulled the garden plow, the cart and buggy; he took fright and piled things up in a lot of smithereens, children were hurt and parents frightened out of their wits; don't drive any more, gentle horses for they are dangerous at times. We might go on ad infinitum with illustrations, showing the fallacy of Scribbler's intimation concerning the automobile and would finally conclude: to die and be buried away from grave diggers is the only safe place from death, vehicles of death, engines of death, instruments of death, means of death.

JOINT PUBLISHING HOUSE METHODIST DOCTRINES

A publishing house has been agreed upon for Shanghai, China, and it is to be run by the two branches of the Methodist churches. We would suppose if this is a Methodist house, owned and conducted by Methodists that it would disseminate such theological books as are Methodistic. To do otherwise would be like preaching other doctrines not their own to a benighted world. Methodists should sell from Methodist authors, whether it be in China or at home, such methods would necessitate other publishing houses. Go preach the gospel is a divine command and it becomes the duty of the called to preach the gospel, as it is written, and all people, whether in America or China who do not understand it are benighted. A colored preacher consistently said: "I am called, I must preach His gospel to those of other denominations who do not understand the scriptures the same as we have."

SACRED CONCERTS

In Lexington Interrupted By Band Going on Strike.

For several weeks Lexington has had sacred concerts at Woodland Park every Sunday evening. There was no concert last Sunday evening, from the fact that the members of Saxon's band, which furnished the music, are on a strike. The ten members of the band received $25 for two hours' work. They demand a greater recompense, and those in charge of the public park refused to accede.

Lexington Objects to New Insurance Rates.

The Lexington Chamber of Commerce has appointed W. H. Cassell, L. G. Cox, W. J. Loughridge and Moses Kaufman as a committee to confer with a committee from the General Council on Lexington's fire insurance rates for mercantile property. Rates in Lexington have been raised from 100 to 400 per cent. under a new order of the State Board of Underwriters. Plans are on foot for an insurance company backed by local capital, for the purpose of taking up the local insurance which is affected by the raise in rates.

Two More Picnics.

We are asked to announce that the Sunday school of the Methodist church will give a picnic in Prewitt's woods on Wednesday, and that the Sunday-school of the Southern Presbyterian church will give one at Pilot Knob on Friday. Miss Mabel O'Rear, Daughter of Judge and Mrs Ed.

C. O'Rear,

Loses Her Life While Boat Riding at Fernbank, O.

BODY RECOVERED MONDAY

Great Anxiety and Suffering at the Stewart Home.

On last Friday Mrs. O'Rear, the wife of Judge Ed C. O'Rear, of the Kentucky Court of Appeals, accompanied by her beautiful and attractive daughter, Mabel, aged 15 years, left their home at Frankfort to visit the family of Mr. Archibald Stewart a retired an influential merchant who lives at Fernbank, Ohio, a suburb of Cincinnati.

In the evening at about 8 o'clock Mr. Oscar Mortashed, a young man, a friend of the Stewart family called. He invited Miss Anna Stewart and Miss O'Rear to go canoe riding with him on the Ohio river. The invitation was accepted and soon the frail canvass canoe with its occupants had reached the middle of the river.

In their exciting pleasure they failed to notice the City of Wheeling, a steamer which was fast approaching them.

Mr. Mortshed is said to be an expert oarsman; quickly he turned the canoe in time to miss the steamer but the frail bark was capsize and its occupants thrown into the river. The accident was not noticed by the steamer's crew.

The three clung to the canoe and the oarsman tried in vain to steer its precious cargo to the Ohio shore. Hope for safety in this way was abandoned and they began drifting, drifting with the tide. They talked of the prospects for safety.

After a considerable time they saw a steamer, the Stanley coming up the river. Their cries attracted the attention of its officers who threw the search light across the waters.

The canoe was sighted, but the officer and crew say that there were only two persons when the canoe drew near. The young man was first taken off and then Miss Stewart. Both were much exhausted. On board the Stanley the oarsman said: "Where is Mabel?" The officer said there were only two on the canoe. Then the awful fact was realized that the lovely Mabel had sunk beneath the waves probably to rise no more.

The bearing of the message to the Stewart home and to Mrs. O'Rear can be better imagined than described.

O! what a night of excruciating agony, oh! what fears.

As speedily as possible Judge O'Rear was notified at Frankfort and the search for the body was begun.

In speaking of the sad accident the Enquirer of Sunday says: Judge O'Rear, in answer to a telephone from Mr. Archibald Stewart, arrived at 10 o'clock Saturday to assist in the search for the body.

All day a large force men under the personal guidance of Mr. Stewart dragged the river as canons were fired along both shores and dynamite was exploded under the water.

When the people of the villages awoke, Saturday morning they found the streets strewn with hand bills which read as follows:

"Three hundred dollars will be paid by Judge E. C. O'Rear, of Frankfort, Ky., or by Mr. A. Stewart, of Fernbank, Ohio, in cash, and at once, for the body of Miss Mabel O'Rear, drowned in the Ohio River, just above the mouth of Muddy Creek, near Adyston, on Friday evening, August 22."

Chenault & Orear, MT. STERLING, KY.

Miss Anna Stewart, who was in the canoe with Oscar B. Mortashed and Miss O'Rear at the time of the accident, is completely prostrated and confined to her bed under the care of a physician.

The meeting between the two fathers was most effecting. When Judge O'Rear alighted from the train he was embraced by Mr. Stewart. Tears glistened in their eyes and they sobbed heavily.

The search was continued by hundreds of people along the banks of the river and on boats; expert divers were engaged and explosives used.

LATEST.—A dispatch was received yesterday at 12.50, from Judge O'Rear, at Lawrenceburg, Ind., fifteen miles below Cincinnati, saying that the body of his daughter had been found and identified.

The company will reach this city this morning at 9:25 and the funeral service will be held at noon today at the O'Rear home on West Main street by Rev. D. W. Robertson. Judge O'Rear and family have the sympathy of our community in their great loss and sorrow.

The deceased throughout a long life had exemplified the beauties of a christian character and was a good citizen, father, husband and church member. His wife, formerly Miss Nancy Robinson, survives him at the age of eighty-one.—The Democrat.

BOURBON COUNTY ITEMS.

Miss Rena Bacon died at her home in Paris on Tuesday last. She was the eldest daughter of the late W. A. Bacon.

The 12-year-old son of Mr. Marion Tackett, residing in Paris died Thursday of typhoid fever.

A committee from the city council met with the Fiscal court on Wednesday. The court offered to give the city $25,000, payable at the rate of $5,000 a year, to take Main street off its hands. The proposition was accepted.

THE INTERURBAN Will Be Built Between Paris and Lexington—Car Shops at Paris

The Bourbon Fiscal Court met on Wednesday and granted the Bluegrass Traction Company a franchise to construct within one year from date an electric railroad over the turnpike from Lexington to this city.

The grantees agree to operate cars within the city of Paris, should the city grant the right of way over the street for said purpose. They also agree to locate within the city of Paris its car barns and repair shops.

The grantees and their successors and assigns shall have no exemption from taxation, except as to property exempt from taxation under the laws of the State of Kentucky, and the said line and all property in said county shall be liable to taxation from the completion and beginning of operations of said road.

Freight as well as passenger cars are to run over the road.—Bourbon News.

Nearly a Million of Pensioners.

Congress has been running a race with death and Congress has won. The Civil War pensioners are now dying at a rapid rate, and yet the pension list is increasing. Thirty-seven years after the close of the war there are more pensioners than ever before. The number lacks only 674 of being a round million. This was an increase of 7,027 since 1890. The experts say it is the high-water mark, and that from now on the increasing death rate will decrease the pension list. This has been predicted each year for the past twenty years, but each time Congress has rallied to the rescue of the list and added more names than death could take off. At the last session 1,000 bills were enacted granting pensions in cases to which our most liberal pension laws could not be stretched, and general laws were passed which will add 10,000 new names to the long roll. The experts estimate with confidence a constant decrease in the number of pensioners from this time. They say that at least 40,000 pensioners will die during the next year. The increasing death rate of the veterans is pathetic, but the death of a pensioner does not always stop the pension.

We believe there are one or two Revolutionary war pensioners still paid or were within the last four or five years, although the youngest possible soldier of that war, if he were living now, would be something like 135 years old. The last of them died many years ago, but the widows keep on signing the pension roll. It was long a regular business enterprise for unscrupulous young women to hang around soldiers homes and induce aged and decrepit or feeble minded pensioners to marry them, so that they could draw widows' pensions, perhaps for the next 50 years. The tax payers of this country are now paying nearly a half million dollars every day in the year, exclusive of Sundays, to those who fought for the Union, to tens of thousands who did not fight and never smelled powder, to thousands who deserted and fled to places of safety and to thousands of widows of all these classes. Nothing has happened to cause any reasonable expectation of any decrease in this burden. In the exigency of politics and in the hunt for votes, Congress can be trusted to keep the ranks full.—Exchange.

The Court of Appeals at Frankfort will be asked to reverse the decision of the Fayette Circuit court in the case of William McCarty, who was found guilty of the murder of his young wife, and sentenced to be hanged on Sept. 5. The decision of an Indiana judge cuts off Chicago's supply of natural gas from the Indiana field.

S. S. Cassidy Marries in Letcher County.

Bently, P.O., Letcher County, Ky., Aug. 18, 1902.

Editors Advocate.

It may be news for your readers to know that Mr. S. S. Cassidy of your city, was united in marriage yesterday, Aug. 17, at high noon, to Miss Mary Belle Webb, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson R. Webb, on the head of the north fork of the Kentucky river.

The wedding was a quiet affair, only a few neighbors and near relatives of the bride being present, and the rite was solemnized in a very impressive manner by Rev. Noah Bentley.

The bride belongs to one of the best families in this section. She is one of the best, brightest, handsomest and most popular young women in Eastern Kentucky and will certainly prove to be a jewel in the relation of wife. Mr. Cassidy is to be congratulated upon his successful wooing and winning the heart and hand of so excellent a young woman.

Mr. Cassidy came to Letcher county last March and his accidental meeting of Miss Webb marked the beginning of a case of love at first sight. Mr. Cassidy is one of the Northern Coal and Coke Company's civil engineers and has been in its employ since last November. Of the twenty engineers now at work for this company, he is rated as one of the best and where great skill and accuracy are required, he is generally chosen by the chief to do the work. Mr. Cassidy, by his gentlemanly conduct, has made many friends in this section, who wish him and his lovely little wife happiness without alloy.

B. S. The age of the bride is said to be 14 years. [Ed.]

LOUISVILLE MARKETS.

Burley trashes continue very high and anything with color is as strong as ever. Dark is getting stronger and an advance is looked for in long rehandlings, which have not as yet moved. Export types are also higher.

The offerings were 63 hogheads of burley and 28 of dark; 70 original inspections and 20 reviews.

The week was not so active as last week. Offerings at auction were 1,493 hogheads and 263 were sold privately; total, 1756. The percentage of rejections was only 22, showing a fairly satisfactory market. Receipts were 1,971 hogheads, being considerably behind those of last year.

Murderer Commits Suicide.

On Wednesday, near Russellville, Ky., while Miss Zoda Vick, aged sixteen years, was going to the milk house in a grove near her home she was assaulted and murdered by Hugh Marshall, colored, and her body covered with leaves, brush, etc. Great excitement soon prevailed, and he would have been mobbed if caught. His decomposing body was found Friday hanging in a barn. The supposition is that he hanged himself on Wednesday night, rather than suffer death by a mob. The mob was furious on finding that Marshall had cheated them, as it had been planned to burn him at the stake. Many wanted to burn the body, but Circuit Judge Crewdson and Judge Clark, who were in the party, prevailed upon them not to do it.

TOM COCKRELL Will Be Tried in Wolfe County in October—Hargises Asked that Indictment be Dismissed.

A dispatch from Jackson, Ky., on Thursday, says: Tom Cockrell will be tried for the murder of Ben Hargis in Campton, Wolfe county, in October. Special Judge Ira Julian today granted the motion for a change of venue and selected Wolfe county. The granting of the change of venue was bitterly fought by the Hargises, brothers of the dead man. When Judge Julian ordered the change the Hargises then asked Commonwealth's Attorney's Byrd to have the indictment dismissed, Judge Julian then interposed and said the motion could be made, but he would promptly overrule it. The determination of the Judge to hear the case was received with disappointment by the Hargises, who insisted that a fair trial was assured in Breathitt, while if those witnesses had to go to Wolfe, they would be in danger.

Mr. C. W. Nesbitt, of this city, appeared as counsel for the defense when the case was called at Jackson.

Whiskey and 44 Guns Get In Their Work.

On Sunday night at "Saint's Tabernacle" on Spruce about twelve miles from the city, Charles Robinson and Marion and Wesley Martin engaged in a shooting scrape, resulting in Marion Martin and Robinson being shot in the arm, neither of which was serious. The facts, as near as we could learn, were as follows:

It seems that in the morning Marion Martin and another party had had some trouble when Robinson acted as peacemaker. At the night services Robinson was talking to some friends when Marion Martin came up and shook hands with him and said: "I am full of red liquor, and am going to kill somebody."

It is said Robinson said "I don't want to have any trouble at Church," and turned to walk away when Martin began to shoot. After firing twice Robinson reached for his gun, when a brother of Martin, Wesley commenced shooting, hitting Robinson in the right arm, Robinson fired once hitting Martin in the arm. Robinson says he only fired once, being afraid he would hit some one else.

Robinson was sentenced from the Bath Circuit Court last term for killing a Mr. Beacraft, and was in jail here for about 4 months when he was pardoned by Gov. Beckham August 1st. He was in town yesterday to see a physician about his wound, and up to the time of going to press was not placed under arrest or any warrant issued. Warrants have been issued for the two Martins.

A Discharge Would be Better.

There is considerable consternation among the sporty element in the Treasury Department over the action of Secretary Shaw in reducing the salaries of three clerks who have been too fond of poker. Besides being reduced they have been transferred to position of less importance. In one instance a clerk who has been drawing a salary of $1,800 a year was reduced to $1,000, a loss of $800 per annum. He and one of the other clerks were employed in a bureau where the currency of the country is handled.

The wife of the man who was reduced so much in salary called at the Treasury several days ago and requested that a part of the salary of her husband be paid to her, as she was actually deprived of household necessities. Another of the clerks wrote to the Secretary complaining that a clerk owed him $15 and would not pay him. When the clerk alleged to owe the money was called upon about the matter he stated that he and the complaining man had been in the habit of going out of the city each afternoon to play poker and other games, that they had lost considerable money, and had a difference of opinion as to proper division of their losses.

From The Contests of 1899.

Last week Depositions were taken in the case of George W. Long, former chairman of the Republican State Committee, against Walter Day and Floyd Day, both of Jackson. Mr. Long is suing Walter Day on a note for $1,010, on which he claims Floyd Day is security. The note was given while the contests were on at Frankfort in 1899, and Long claims that Floyd Day indorsed the note. Walter Day's indorsement was not on it. He also claims that its payment hinged upon the success of the contested election cases, he being the claimant for State Treasurer, and also that it was further agreed that all the candidates should pay. The document itself has been lost. Former Gov. W. O. Bradley is representing Mr. Long. Breckinridge & Shelly represent Floyd Day and C. W. Miller is representing Walter Day.

Work to be Resumed on Morehead-West Liberty Line

A special from West Liberty says: The proposed railroad from Morehead to West Liberty seems to be a go. E. B. Carr, the manager, wired W. A. Young, the attorney for the road, that the money was secured and that work would begin at once. There has been a considerable amount of work done on this road and some of the rails are laid, but owing to financial affairs work had to be suspended for a time. The road traverses some of the finest timber lands in the world. It is believed it will connect with the Ohio and Kentucky railroad at Caney. The Caney canal coal fields are said to be the largest in the world. The Caney people are making a strong pull to get the road extended to their place. There has been a constant flow of capitalists at West Liberty for some time, and some large real estate deals have been made.

NO OTHER GOVERNMENT

So Fair-minded, so Impartial, so Willing to treat all Classes With Absolute Justice.

While Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul, Minn., has been engaged in the laudable work of discouraging the hostility of the Catholic press and societies, and of many ecclesiastics, to the American policy in the Philippines, he unwittingly, perhaps, confesses that the leaders of his co-religionists in America are as unpatriotic and disloyal as they are credited with being by unprejudiced outsiders. In the course of a recent sermon, the archbishop said:

"Let justice be done to America; in no other country is their government so fair-minded, so impartial, so willing to treat all classes with absolute justice as that with which we are blessed in America. And let Catholics be careful lest by imprudent agitation and repeated mistrust of the government of America, they instill into the minds of their fellow citizens, the notion that, as Catholics, they are disposed to form themselves into a people apart, ever dissatisfied with America and its institutions, ever ready to complain, ever anxious to find a plea upon which to rest their murmurings. The Catholic body will never prosper in America unless it be thoroughly imbued with the spirit of the country and with a deep love for its welfare. To be one with the country is the lesson which Pope Leo is ceaselessly teaching Catholics in every country."

It is the simple truth that no Protestant body in America has ever needed such advice as this given by the eloquent archbishop to his fellow Roman Catholics. That the Pope is "ceaselessly teaching Catholics in every country" to be loyal and submissive to the institutions of the country only shows the constant tendency in Catholicism in another direction. The pretensions of the Pope to civil rule, and the required allegiance to his authority from Romanists throughout the world, combine to discourage pure patriotism among his followers. Such sermons as Archbishop Ireland has just preached, and such advice as it is alleged the Pope is "ceaselessly" giving, would be superfluous for any Protestant communion. The leaders of the Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist, Lutheran and Congregationalist denominations in America, in England and in Europe are under no necessity to "ceaselessly" teach their brethren to be thoroughly imbued with the spirit of their respective countries. Patriotism and Protestantism harmonize, but Romanism and patriotism can never be one until the Roman Catholic peoples of the various lands are free from the dominance of the Pope at Rome.—Christian Standard.

THE MAN WHO LOVES A JOKE.

Though his pedigree be painted
Scarcely known to his own kind,
Though his boast no kinship painted
Stretching steadily in his rear,
Though his count be slow and slender,
"Take of clothes and courage broke.
All my scruples I surrender
To the man who loves a joke.

Mark his love nor living
Count not his name nor breed,
But shadow all forgiving
How gladly to his need,
Fondle and flatter, raised before me,
Gilded head and heart of oak,
To the man who loves a joke,
For one man who loves a joke.

Plant his banners fore and after,
Count his battles lost and won,
Kindly condescend of laughter,
Just philosopher of fun,
Lighter shall be the breaker,
Lighter rest the human yoke,
On the happy captaker
With the man who loves a joke.

Count the world around him,
Follow with the cloud and day,
High and low alike shall sound him
For the comfort of that way:
Shower of life's joy and sorrow,
Beaver of the straggling crowd,
Herald of the world's new dawn,
Bless the man who loves a joke.

Cleaver eared and broader builded,
Kinder toward his human kind,
Open heart nor fancy-guided,
Open heart with open mind,
Self-esteeming yet denying,
Severed from the selfish cloak,
"I will spend my life relieving
On the man who loves a joke."

IRMA'S BETROTHAL.

BY MARY E. HULLAH.

In one of the turret-rooms of Reitzenberg Castle a young girl, arrayed in a simple dress and white apron, sat sewing industriously. At the sound of footsteps she paused in her work; at the sight of a Hussar officer in uniform she reddened with vexation. Yet there was nothing in Albrecht von Reitzenberg's appearance to annoy her; on the contrary, he was young, very good-looking, tall, and of dignified bearing.

"Will you allow me to come in?" he asked, standing on the threshold. The girl took up her work again. "You can come in if you wish," she said indifferently.

He walked across the room: "I have a proposal to make to you, Baroness Irma. Will you give me your attention for a little while?"

She looked at him indignantly; she had a sweet oval face and deep gray eyes.

"I prefer not to listen to you, Count Albrecht."

"I thought that you would say so!" (there was something like a ring of triumph in his voice); "but indeed my proposal is very harmless. Let us come to an understanding."

There was uncertainty, distrust in her eyes. "Yes," continued the young officer, "I know that you have every reason to be offended. You have been most unfairly treated."

"I have been invited to this house under false pretenses. I came because I thought that the visit would give pleasure to Frau von Wolde, who fills, as is supposed, the place of my mother. I am sorry to speak disrespectfully of your cousin, but—"

"Not at all. You are perfectly right, and my relative, Frau von Wolde, is in the plot, and has been from the beginning. I know all about it now. My old uncle has just enlightened me. I, as heir of Reitzenberg Castle—will excuse my mentioning her name first—have received orders to offer my hand and my debts in marriage, to the Baroness Irma von Buchow, who on attaining her majority will become possessed of so large a fortune that she could free the Reitzenberg estate with a stroke of her pen. Nay, hear me out. This lady was to have been kept in ignorance of this plan, but that her friend and chaperon could not resist the temptation of giving her a hint as to how matters stood after she had become the guest of the Castle. Is this so?"

"Yes," she stood by his side now, and the sunlight just touched the coils of her auburn hair. "I have been deceived, cruelly deceived."

"Under the circumstances nothing remains for me but to give you the opportunity of expressing your opinion as to the tyrannous family compact even more decidedly than you have done already. Baroness Irma von Buchow, will you consent to give me your hand in marriage?"

"Count Albrecht of Reitzenberg, I thank you for the honor you have shown me. I will not."

They stood facing each other, and as Irma looked at her strange word she saw a faint smile in his eyes. Her own anger was beginning to evaporate; he really was behaving well, considering that the Reitzenbergs were renowned for their hasty tempers.

"You admit," she said, after a pause, "that I have been awkwardly placed."

"I admit that you have been inopportunist, abominably treated! I blush to think that a member of our family could have dreamt of such a scheme. I intend to show you how penitent I am, now that I have received my dismissal, I will immediately leave this house and rid you of my presence."

"If you do that, Count Albrecht, I shall be sorry off that ever. You don't know my cousin, Frau von Wolde. She will insist upon my remaining here three months, as was arranged; she will reproach me for your absence; she will argue and make me dislike you more than ever, if—"

"If possible."

His good humor was irresistible. She burst into an amatory laugh.

For another half hour the rejected suitor remained in conversation with the heiress, and at the end of that time they, too, had made a pact. Albrecht was to remain at the castle, he and Baroness Irma were to pretend to be on amicable terms, and the two conspirators (the count and the chaperon) were not to learn until the last day of the visit had expired that their hopes had failed.

"I will endeavor to make your visit as little irksome to you as possible," explained the heir of Reitzenberg, "and we can behave as if there was no enmity between us."

"Yes" (there was still a little doubt in her voice and manner), "I think that I can trust you."

"Come," he said gently, "Baroness Irma, is it a true between us signed and sealed?"

He took her hand in his and bending over it raised her fingers to his lips.

The master of the castle was the first to commence hostilities. One day, toward the end of the three months' visit, Irma came into the drawing-room to find the whole party awaiting her arrival, and when she perceived that something was wrong, Frau von Wolde had been shedding tears, the old count's brow was clouded with anger, and Albrecht—Irma hardly dared to look at him, so changed was his aspect. It was too clear that the termination of the pleasant companionship of the last few weeks was to be war!

"My dear Baroness Irma," said the count, advancing to meet his young guest with ceremonious politeness. "I am exceedingly pleased to see you. Your visit here has given me great satisfaction. You honored this house with your presence, with the full consent of your guardian and my esteemed cousin, Frau von Wolde. I had hoped, not without grounds, that the friendship between you and my heir was gradually ripening into a deeper and more lasting feeling. The alliance is one which must give satisfaction to all interested in our families. Imagine my distress on hearing to-day from my nephew that you have refused his proposal of marriage!"

Irma looked toward Count Albrecht. Something that she read in his watchful mien made her hesitate as she answered: "It is quite true; we are friends and nothing more."

"It cannot be, my dear young lady, that so young a maiden should have given away her preference without the consent or knowledge of her guardian? Answer me candidly; are your affections already engaged?"

The color surged into Irma's cheeks and left them pale again. She glanced at Frau von Wolde. There was no help for her now. "That is a question which you have no right to ask Count Reitzenberg, and which I refuse to answer. I must beg you to excuse me!"

"The Baroness Buchow is right!" burst in Albrecht. "She has suffered enough at our hands already. She shall not be thwarted in her will. If she honors me with her friendship, I accept it gratefully. Listen to me, my uncle. I refuse to be a party to your scheme."

He rose and held the door wide open. There was no smile on his face now; his eyes were full of trouble as they rested on hers. He did not offer to take her hand in farewell. He stood there in mute distress as she passed by—a fair, girlish figure, her white dress, her lace and blue ribbon—and she passed him without a word. The truth between them was over!

The forest spread its wide wings even as far as the Castle garden. Irma loved the green paths and quiet shades, and here she came with her book the morning after her interview with the count, and pretended to read. But though she kept her eyes on the pages she read there only Count Albrecht's parting words—she accepted her offer of friendship gratefully! Driven to bay, as it were, in order to save her, that was what he had said. During the last three months she had come to understand something of his uprightness, his high sense of honor.

But though she kept her eyes on the pages she read there only Count Albrecht's parting words—she accepted her offer of friendship gratefully! Driven to bay, as it were, in order to save her, that was what he had said. During the last three months she had come to understand something of his uprightness, his high sense of honor.

"It was my fortune," sighed Irma, "that made him nearly hate me at first!" Did he hate her now?

She shut up her book and wandered still farther into the wood, down a hillside covered with fern and moss, toward the stream that ran between high rocks, chattering and foaming on its way. On the farther side of the stream was a tract of open country dotted with clumps of trees and underwood and bright with heather. The stepping-stones were half covered with water to-day; the current was running fiercer than its wont. She bethought herself of a rustic bridge a few yards farther down.

The bridge hung high in the air, supported by rough pine stems; it was picturesque, but a fragile affair. Half way across Irma put her hand on the rail—how noisy the stream was!—it snapped off at her touch; one wooden plank tottered under her feet, another fell with a splash into the water below. She had plenty of courage; she was light and active. She knew, moreover, that she could easily leap that formidable-looking gap and gain the bank. She was about to make the attempt when she was stopped by a peremptory shout.

"Gently, gently! Jump from that projecting stem; it is safe!"

She looked up, on the edge of the heather-covered rock stood Albrecht Reitzenberg.

She paused uncertain, half inclined to retrace her step. Perceiving her hesitation he raised his voice and shouted still louder above the clamor of the rushing water:

"Can you hear me, Baroness Irma?" She nodded assent.

"Step there—to the left. Do not look back!"

Involuntarily she obeyed. He held out his arm; the gulf yawned between them; he could be of no help. "The stem will bear your weight. Do not be in too great a hurry."

"(Why does he look so grave?" thought Irma; "is he still angry?")

"I had better run back the way I came, Count Albrecht. Do not trouble on my account."

"No; do as I direct you. You see which is the best place to stand? Drop your book, it might be in your way, and jump as far as you can. Now!"

One spring and Irma was safe on the moss and heather, while the plank on which she had thought to stand slipped slowly but surely into the foaming water. Albrecht held her back as she slipped.

"Thank heaven that you are safe!" he cried. "Oh! Irma, my Irma, I could not stop you. I came just too late for that. I could only look on in agony. Are you frightened? Are you hurt?"

"I am not hurt. I did not know that it was dangerous; I did not indeed."

She saw him turn pale in the thought of her peril, and the tears which she had not shed for herself fell for his distress.

"The bridge should have been destroyed long ago; it shall be done to-day. I did not dare to join you or to speak till you had passed the worst. If you had been killed—oh! I cannot bear to think of it; I should never have known another day's happiness, and it would have been my fault—mine! How could I let you wander about alone when I was longing to be with you! My Irma, my best beloved! Thank heaven that I have you safe at last. Surely we have played at being friends and enemies long enough? Look at me and say that you love me!"

When he had made her an offer of marriage three long months ago she had been ready, age, very ready, with her refusal. Now, when her whole heart was his, she could find no words but her tears except "I love you! I love you!"

It was enough for him. "My bride, my wife!" he said, and held her in his arms.

The green ferns rustled and whispered, the beeches tossed their boughs in the sunlight, the red squirrels played in the oak trees, the whole world was full of life and joy at that moment when the lovers plighted their troth.—American Queen.

Stitching Up a Heart.

An account of a surgical operation on a man's heart was given at a recent meeting in the Academy of Science in Paris. The patient—a young soldier—had been stabbed in the chest with a knife, the point of which penetrated the pericardium. The wound in the heart was sewn up with three stitches, and although complications set in the patient recovered.

Backward.

The question of a return to an aboriginal clothing—or lack of clothing—is becoming active. We are all well advanced toward shirt waists for both men and women, and the sleeves for both sexes show a tendency to stop above the elbow. Children are discarding shoes for sandals, and a crusade has been started against hats. Way wear hats, anyway? We are told that their chief effect is to make one baldheaded, and that if a person would do without them, and expose the head to the sun and air, he would be rewarded with a fine thatch of hair that would afford all the warmth needed for the average brain. But if this thing goes on we are liable to go back to the fig leaf, and then we shall be forced to the disagreeable resort to a tariff on figs in order to produce our own supply of clothing.—Ex.

Stop Trusts.

President Roosevelt and his attorney general are making very cheap campaign material by their alleged contention with the beef trust. They are simply fighting sham men and windmills. Just as long as their present tariff protective monstrosity stands on the books of the nation the managers of the beef trust and other similar colossal mergers will laugh at the President and Mr. Knox. That is they will laugh and jeer when nobody is looking. Just one movement carried into an act of Congress and signed by the President will put an end to all sorts of merit of this nature, and that is repeal the tariff tax on trust products.—Indiana Sentinel.

Attempted Mutiny at Frankfort Penitentiary.

Three desperate prisoners, Wallace Bishop and Thomas Mulligan, of Covington, and Lafayette Brooks, of Morgan county, assisted by Albert Ransom, colored, of Louisville, made a break for liberty at the Frankfort penitentiary at six o'clock Wednesday morning. Failing in the effort to escape or to kill prison officials, which seemed to be a part of the plot, they stood at bay in one of the prison shop rooms, holding Foreman Charles Wills in duress, for more than four hours. After the negro Ransom had been wounded and Brooks had also sustained a slight wound, they agreed to surrender. Bishop rebelled against the agreement and made a show of resistance. He was shot by George Frey, a guard, and died of his wound late in the afternoon. Bishop was the leader of the mutiny which was planned six months ago.

NO MORE STREET FAIRS.

By the B. P. O. E.—Give Something Better.

The Grand Lodge of Elks in session at Salt Lake City adopted a recommendation of the Committee on Rules and Laws absolutely prohibiting the holding of street fairs and carnivals under the auspices of Elks' Lodges. The law will go into effect January 1, 1903. The feeling among the members of the Grand Lodge that such fairs and carnivals were not in accord with the fundamental principles of the order was very strong, and the recommendations were overwhelmingly adopted.

Let the objectionable and hurtful features of these fairs be eliminated.

Eastern Kentucky Land Has Been Sold to Canadian Capitalists.

The largest body of land situated in Breathitt and Knott counties, Ky., embracing 129,000 acres, belonging to the Breathitt Coal, Iron and Lumber Company, has just been sold through Mrs. Helen B. Lansdowne, of Covington, Ky., the largest stockholder, to Canadian people. This is the only tract of land in Kentucky containing over 100,000 acres in one continuous body.

There goes with the property a valuable charter, perpetual, and granting innumerable privileges, such as the building of railroads, bridges, dams and condemning of ten miles of right way, for the purpose of railroads. No such charter can be obtained in the State of Kentucky today. It is the purpose of the purchasers, who are wealthy, to develop the property.

Louisville Elks to Give no More Carnivals.

Louisville will have no more street fairs or carnivals under the auspices of Lodge No. 8, B. P. O. E. Such class of shows as have brought the order in some sections into disrepute. Elks here are loyal to the constitution and laws of the national organization and gracefully submit to the new ruling.

"The action of the Grand Lodge was not taken without mature deliberation," said a prominent Elks' who attended the Salt Lake reunion, "and no lodge left the city 'sore' over the ruling. The street fairs had begun to be a disgrace to the order in many cities."

"We are not barred from participating in all legitimate entertainments, such as forming minstrels, horse shows, agricultural fairs, etc. The Grand Lodge does object to any show with a hint of immorality and gambling."

Now, if other orders will follow suit the moral atmosphere of the country will be somewhat purified.

GRATIFYING.

Progress Reported in Sunday-School Work.

Nearly 700 delegates attended the thirty-seventh annual convention of the Kentucky Sunday-School Association at Hopkinsville last week, and there were over 2,000 persons present at the opening session. According to General Secretary E. A. Fox, there are more than twice as many delegates as ever before attended a State convention. The financial report showed $109 in the treasury, several hundred dollars in pledges and no debts. The salary of General Secretary Fox was increased to $1,500 a year and a stenographer will be regularly employed.

JOKE WAS TOO REALISTIC.

Comedian Himself Fooled When He Thought to Fool the Audience.

The properties that are used on the burlesque stage are not always counterfeit, although there is a popular idea that stage whisky is generally sold in tin cans. The comedian had a mixture of yellow corn meal and water and that stage milk is never anything but chalk and water. The people in the front row of a local theater recently had it demonstrated to them that the milk used in a bottle had once been the real thing, and they had reason to regret that the property man had not followed the usual rule of manufacturing the article out of chalk and water.

The comedian had been in the habit of doing an effective bit of acting with a large rag baby dressed up to resemble a real child, and a baby's nursing bottle filled with a substance resembling milk. No one in the audience thought it was milk and neither did the comedian himself. He had been handling the bottle for weeks and had not noticed that the cork was getting loose. Several nights ago it occurred to the comedian that he could make his part funnier by letting the cork out of the bottle and allowing some of the "milk" to escape as he went through his usual motions in extracting laughter from the crowd.

The comedian was much more successful than he had any idea he would be, for when the cork came out of the bottle a considerable amount of its contents came also, in chunks, and with an odor which was stronger even than that of Limburger cheese. The comedian dodged back from the stage as quickly as possible, his hand to his nose, and the chorus girls carefully avoided the spot on the stage where the milk had fallen. As soon as the comedian had finished his part he made a bee line for the property man in the wings, who was responsible for the contents of the bottle.

"Why didn't you tell me that you had real milk in that bottle?" demanded the comedian, indignantly.

"Because, I never thought you'd be fool enough to let the cork out," said the property man with equal heat. "I filled that bottle with milk when we were at Buffalo, eight weeks ago, and it would have done well enough if you'd only had sense enough to keep the cork in. Of course, you can't expect milk to keep sweet bottled up for eight weeks, and nobody but a thick-headed Irish comedian would expect it. I've got to go and buy another pint of milk now to fill up that bottle with, and this show isn't making any too much money anyway. He thinks like you who spoil the properties in shows and break them up in business."

The answer of the property man for the time being completely squelched the unfortunate comedian, and he inwardly resolved to investigate all properties before he attempted to introduce any originality into the act he had been performing for 17 years.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

DEATHS.

Col. Thos. Owens, a prominent citizen and lawyer, of Carlisle, died suddenly of Apoplexy, on Sunday.

Rev. John Hickey, one of the oldest and most highly esteemed Catholic Priests in the State, died in Mason county Monday, aged 83 years. He has had charge of the churches at Mayslick, Flemingsburg and Carlisle for thirty-six years.

HODGKINS—Bush Hodgkins died at his home in Winchester on Monday afternoon, August 18, 1902, aged 36 years. He was a prominent member of the Christian Church, an excellent man, sociable and popular. For several years he had been a lawyer.

MCGUIRE—Miss Lou Alice, daughter of Felix McGuire, of St. Helens, Ky., aged 12 years, died at their home on Sunday morning August 17th, 1902. She was a niece of J. G. Trimble of this city.

DUNCAN—Mrs. Nancy Duncan, aged 80 years, widow of Johnson Duncan, in the Pocket neighborhood on Hinkston, died on Thursday, August 21, 1902, of debility incident to old age. The burial service was conducted by Rev. Holton Frank at the Johnson Wilson burying ground. She leaves one daughter, Miss Belle Duncan.

ROBERTSON—At the home of Miss Mary McDonald in this city on Friday morning, August 22, 1902, Mrs. Amanda Robertson died of general debility incident to old age. She had been spent in this community. She was born March 5th, 1812, hence had attained to the age of 90 years, 5 months and 17 days. Her maiden name was Crawford. Twice has she been married, first to a Mr. Grant and second to Benjamin Robertson. Since 1873 she has been a widow, and has since as before been a resident of Mt. Sterling. She was the oldest white person in this city, and for more than half a century had been a member of the Christian Church, where she was an honored and worthy member; she was gentle, kind, and, when physically able, regular in attendance at the meeting of her brethren, and after the infirmities of age took hold on her and kept her at home she lovingly spoke of the services to which the bell called her and others. The writer had read the scripture, sung the songs she loved, and prayed with her, and will cherish pleasant memories of this aged child of God. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. H. D. Clark at the church on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the burial was in Macpelah.

MARRIAGES.

A brother, A. J. Crawford, of Louisville, survives her.

HOWELL.—On Monday morning at 12:45 o'clock Aug. 25, 1902, death entered the home of Robert Howell, near Grassy, in this county, and claimed his beloved wife, Fannie Howell. She had been sick only two weeks with typhoid fever. She is the daughter of John H. Mason and wife, and was born March 2, 1876, hence was in her 27th year. She was married to Mr. Howell on Thursday, Thanksgiving day, Nov. 28, 1901, and they began their wedded life under favorable surroundings for a long, happy and useful career. Sad it is that so soon her work is to close and so great a sorrow comes to her husband and loved ones. We are taught that all things work together for good to those who love God, and blessed are the dead who died in the Lord; hence earth's sorrows are to be borne with the assurance that all is well. She was a member of the Grassy Lick Methodist church; a refined, cultured, christian woman. The funeral service will be conducted at their home on this, Tuesday morning, at 11 o'clock by her pastor, Rev. George Froh, and the body will be laid to rest in Macpelah cemetery. To her husband and kindred we extend our sympathy.

J. C. Nelson, editor of the Bath County World has been quite sick for the past two weeks.

Prof. I. B. Grubbs, is slowly improving under treatment at the Good Samaritan Hospital.

The condition of Mrs. M. R. Cheatham, who has been seriously ill for the past ten days, remains unchanged.

Willie Ray, aged 10 years, son of Omar Ratliff, of Sharpsburg, has been dangerously ill of blood poison, but is improving.

James Jones, who was paralyzed a few days ago, continues in a serious condition. He was for some years connected with the Monarch Mill Company.

Reeves McClure, aged 16 years, son of Mrs. W. A. McClure, of this city, is dangerously sick with typhoid fever at the home of Sterling Bush, at Grassy.

Harry Orr Samuels was on Tuesday taken to Lexington to be treated by Dr. Winfred Frailick, a New York specialist, who claims to have discovered a treatment which is effective with consumptives. He is now at home and his condition is serious.

To My Friends.

It is with joy I tell you what Kodol did for me. I was troubled with my stomach for several months. Upon being advised to use Kodol I did so, and words cannot tell the good it has done me. A neighbor had dyspepsia so that he had tried most everything. I told him to use Kodol. Words of gratitude have come to me from him because I recommended it. Geo. W. Fry, Viola, Iowa. Health and strength, of mind and body, depend on the stomach, and normal activity of the digestive organs. Kodol, the great reconstructive tonic, cures all stomach and bowel troubles, indigestion, dyspepsia. Kodol digests any good food you eat. Take a dose after meals.

THE COUNTRY

BOY'S OPPORTUNITIES

And the Prospect for Distinction.

In the country, boys dream of the city and its great opportunities. They see, in their minds, enormous stores, vast libraries and reading rooms, great opportunities for self-improvement; excellent day schools and evening schools, Young Men's Christian Association, evening universities, and other institutions where seekers after knowledge may satisfy their longings. In other words, to the country boy, the great city is a sea of opportunities.

On the other hand, the city-bred boy, who has breathed the air of opportunity from childhood, who has passed libraries and reading rooms so many times that their familiarity and commonness have taken the edge off his mental appetite for their contents, longs for the free air and wider space of the country.

If a country boy is made of the right stuff, instead of great opportunity in the city, and longing for access to better libraries and larger schools, he will try to redeem himself from the meagerness and narrow influences of his surroundings. Every book will be to him a precious luxury, an opportunity to open a little wider the door of his narrow life. If he is determined to get on in the world, the things that seem to hold him back will be converted into stepping-stones to higher levels. Like Lincoln, Garfield, Grant, Greeley, Burrill and the long list of our country's great men who had to struggle against far greater odds without the advantages of the country boy of today, he will prove himself greater than his limitations.—Success.

Foley's Honey and Tar cures colds, prevents pneumonia

Two persons are dead, three others are dying, another is fatally burned and a home is in ruins at Geering, Neb., as the result of lighting a fire with kerosene.

His Sight Threatened.

"While picnicking last month my 11-year-old boy was poisoned by some weed or plant," says W. H. Dibble, of Sioux City, Ia. "He rubbed the poison off his hands into his eyes and for awhile we were afraid he would lose his sight. Finally a neighbor recommended DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. The first application helped him and in a few days he was as well as ever." For skin diseases, cuts, burns, scalds, wounds, insect bites, DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is sure cure. Relieves piles at once. Beware of counterfeits.

F. C. Duerson, Druggist.

Louisville Licenses.

An ordinance pending in the Louisville Council imposes a license of $25 a year on retail and $50 a year on wholesale grocers, and would affect about 2,000 dealers.

Wm. Finn, of Lima, O., obtained excellent results from the use of Foley's Kidney Cure. "It relieved my backache and severe pain over the hips. It toned my system and gave me new vim and energy. It is an honest and reliable remedy, a sure cure for all kidney diseases."

F. C. Duerson, druggist.

For His Bravery.

Angus McDonald, son of the late Marshall McDonald, is being sought by the British war office, from which he is to receive a medal for bravery during the South African war.

Mr. McDonald will be put in communication with the British war office immediately by his relatives. He is located in Idaho at present, working a mining claim.—Louisville Commercial.

Unique Strike.

The most unique strike that has visited Frankfort in years was encountered last week by Dr. C. C. Owens, superintendent of the Feeble-Minded Institute. The Commissioners of the Institute, at a meeting held some time ago ordered a road macadamized from the gate to the institute building, and several of the boys were employed on this work. Friday when Dr. Owens went down to see how the work was progressing he found the boys idle. Their picks and shovels were as clean as table ware and they sat idly about. "What's the trouble here," said he. "Why ain't you boys up and at work?" "We've struck," said one of the number. "We've been down to the livery stable and the man down there told us we wasn't gettin' enough," put in the leader. "We ain't gettin' nothin' a tall, and we want money for our work or we don't work a-tall."

Dr. Owens was puzzled for a moment, but as usual he was equal to the occasion and said: "What wages do you want?" "We want ten cents a week," said the leader of the gang after some hesitation. "Well," said Dr. Owens, "you boys go ahead and do a good job here and I will see that you are paid." Saturday afternoon Dr. Owens was down town and called at one of the banks and got a paper bill changed into dimes.

The Sanitary Situation.

The Board of Health of the city of Manila has decided to rid the city of infection. The cholera which has been raging in that city is responsible for the determination, and every unsanitary building is to be destroyed. An estimate is made that it may cost half a million dollars to carry out this plan. It is stated that there is a clash between the Americans and Filipinos in handling the cholera epidemic. The Filipino health officers are said to be more or less a failure, and it is therefore probable that the ideas of the Americans will be carried out.

Preachers do not Agree.

Recently the Episcopal bishop of Delaware rebuked some young women who left their hats behind them when they went to church. The bishop told them that their conduct was unscriptural and undignified and that it looked worse for them to attend divine service with uncovered heads than for men to do without their coats.

Convention of Oil Men.

Representatives of the Lexington Oil companies have issued to the oil producers and operators and all others interested in the production of crude oil in Kentucky a call for a convention of oil men Sept. 12.

The People's Money.

Official figures prepared by the chief clerks of the appropriation Committees of the House and Senate show a grand total of appropriations at the last session of Congress of $800,624,496.55. In addition, contracts were authorized calling for the expenditure of $262,711,455.

Big it a Success.

Experiments are being conducted by the Illinois Central on a device that is likely to revolutionize the freight carrying business. The experiments are being made with a box car, the trucks of which are fitted with ball bearing journals, which make the car run so easily that a single person can move it.

Lightning's Ruinous Work.

During a storm the Third Baptist church at Knoxville, Tenn., on last Tuesday, was struck by lightning and destroyed by fire, together with a residence adjoining. Loss, $12,000; Insurance, $5,500. This church was organized by Rev. J. Pike Powers, former pastor of the Mt. Sterling Baptist church.
